Raising rates is robbing the fire working class American people. Can the CEOs maybe take a pay cut instead of raising rates on people who can barely afford groceries while working two full time jobs? These rates are not necessary, the company should be looking into making their work more efficient and the CEOs and managers taking cuts instead of hurting the working class and those of us in poverty. Hourly rates only cost people more as those of us actually working jobs will have to pay more to use our homes during peak out. Your charging us more money to cook dinner – a basic necessity need to survive while your CEOs get paid millions? No to raising rates!
